Everybody has a home team; it's the people you call when you get a flat tyre or when something terrible happens. It's the people who, near or far, know everything that's wrong with you and love you anyway. These are the ones who will tell you their secrets, who get themselves a glass of water without asking when they're at your house; these are the people who cry when you cry. These are your people, your middle-of-the-night, no-matter-what people.

8 ways to declutter your Mind.

- Accept what it is.
- Forgive your enemies.
- Let go of resentments and regrets.
- Visualise what's important to you.
- Be kind to your fears.
- Allow yourself to be vulnerable.
- Exercise your body.
- Love yourself the way you are.

LIFE IS AN ECHO

- What you send out, comes back.
- What you sow, you reap.
- What you give, you get
- What you see in others, exists in you.
- Do not judge, so you will not be judged.
- Radiate and give love,
- And love comes back to you.

Our Ups and Downs

It does happen sometimes, that we think a happy experience is going to occur but its opposite takes place. For instance, we expect to be freed completely from worries, and more trouble comes our way. Again, sometimes we think that we are heading towards what seems to be a disaster for us, and we find that it is a fortune. The constant flow of positives and negatives is a paradox that most of us have to experience in our lives. Joy and sorrow like Spring and Summer succeed each other without fail.

Please Keep Our Parish Tidy

I invite everyone to undertake an act of kindness or compassion this weekend, perhaps in some small way to counterbalance with love this awful crime.

Lord, make us all channels of your peace; Where there is hatred, may we bring your love.
Amen
