HEAT-WAVE

It's about the heat, Lord, the heat every one's talking about, the heat that strains the grid and drains our strength leaving us powerless, as wilted blossoms, parched and dry in the noon day sun....

But summer's warmth's no more a curse than heat that bakes a loaf of bread or flames with beauty upon the hearth or presses the sweat of honest toil....
Heat and cold, sun and rain, summer, autumn, winter, spring:
all ways for you to touch us, Lord, and make your presence felt, deeply,
in the marrow of our souls....

Just months ago we cursed the constant rain and prayed for warmth, for spring, for summer days- and now they're here our temperamental tastes are looking for rain again to cool things down until Autumn comes and once again we'll mourn the loss of summer's sun....
Be patient with us, Lord, and with our fickle ways but most of all, whether in the heat or in the cold, touch us, permeate our bodies and make your presence felt and known in the marrow of our souls....
Amen.
